Young TMS filmmakers have 'Henry' in the can, eye 'Beowolf' on the horizon

By REBECCA ZICARELLI Henry is haunted.

Henry is the main character in a short movie of the same name produced by four Telstar Middle School sixth graders.

The film was written, directed, and taped by Ben Cross of Gilead. Henry, the title character, is played by Lance Brown of Bethel. The two ghosts who haunt Henry are Roger, played by Brian Annis of West Bethel, and Roger's brother William, played by Will Chapman of Greenwood. Henry's mother is played by Valerie Cross.

The boys filmed the video on their own. "It all started as a literary assignment." Annis said, "Ben had written the story for a class. He got the idea that he wanted to make a movie out of it.'

Cross, the mastermind behind the film, said he had made a few prior attempts at filmmaking. "I picked up a camera sometimes and put scenes together without any editing. With editing, I learned a lot. I began to think a lot bigger, more creatively."

The editing — taking different segments of video and putting them together to make a coherent story — was done at Telstar Middle School, with the help of Wayne Howe, the sixth-grade social studies

"I was impressed," Howe said. "They did it on their own. All I did was help with the editing."

Mahoosuc Mountain School closes

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Mahoosuc Mountain School of Bethel, a private middle school serving 15 students, closed its doors this past weekend. The closing left SAD44 trying to figure out how best to deal with the youngsters, many of whom will now become the district's responsibility.

The school has operated for the past two-and-one-half years on the second floor of the Casablanca Cinema building in Bethel, It provided individual educational plans for the students, some of whom had difficulty in the traditional public school setting.

MMS teacher Marie Hickey said she was forced to stop operating the school because of her personal health.

Supt. Dave Murphy, who was notified of the closing Saturday, proposed to the School Board Monday that the district take over the program and continue to operate it on the current site. Any MMS students that enroll in SAD44 would bring state education aid money into the district. If all 15 students enrolled, that would total about $75,000 a year, he said.

Those funds, he said, should be sufficient to cover the cost of the program. "I think we would break even," said Murphy. He said there is no room at Telstar to operate it. Murphy praised the Mahoosuc Mountain School. "It's been a good program. They've provided opportunies in some cases that we might not have been able to provide," he said. "It would be good if we could capture the program and wrap our umbrella of Telstar Middle School, and we would try to accommodate kids in the same way Marie did."

He said it would not be easy to take over the school on such short notice, but saw no better alterna-

Director Marcel Polak of Wood-stock agreed. "If we don't do this in the short term, we'll have to reintegrate the students into the middle school. That could be as difficult and challenging as keeping it going," he said. "I see it as low risk, high gain. It's what's best for the Other directors said the individualized program could serve as a model for other aspects of SAD44 education.

They also noted that some of the students, if they returned to regular classes at TMS, would come in more accelerated academically than many other middle school students. Some directors expressed concerns about transforming a private See SCHOOL, page 4

Selectmen, assessors at odds on sending new contract out to bid

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Faced with a proposed 50 percent increase in the amount of money the town will spend this year for contracted assessing services, the Bethel Board of Selectmen want the town's new contract sent to competitive bid.

But town assessors, faced with a tight timeline and the possibility of having to work with an unfamiliar contracted assessing agent, would rather stick with T. A. Associates, the current agent, and not put the contract to bid, at least for a year.

'I have to get tranquilized before I come into a goddamned room with a couple of those bozos.'

ASSESSOR JOHN HEAD On meeting with town selectmen

Last year, the town paid T.A. Associates of West Paris $18,400 for contracted assessing services. Last week, the selectmen took up a new contract calling for the town to pay the company $27,600 during the upcoming tax cycle.

Until now, the Board of Assessors has operated without a written contract for professional assessing services. The proposed new contract is the first time the assessing agent's responsibilities will be spelled out in a formal document.

The document is the result of several months of negotiation between the Board of Assessors and T.A. Associates.

The contract was presented to the selectmen for their approval last week, but instead of signing off on See CONTRACT, page 2

Cold snap emptied heating fuel tanks, locked up pipes, but warmed up vacation bookings

By upping the heating needs calculations by 35 to 40 percent to take into account the frigid temperatures, MainGas has been able to continue to put gas in the tanks in time, she

CROOKED RIVER RESCUE

Early Sunday morning Shannon Sumner of Albany found one of his cows trapped in more than four feet of icy water in the Crooked River. The cow, Midnight, is seven months pregnant. She had fallen through the ice and was at risk of developing hypothermia. Byron Lapham used his tractor to pull Midnight out of the river with the help of Jeremy Lapham, Jeremy Smith, Josh Hamilton, and Brad Chamberlain. According to Dr. Mathew Holden of the Oxford Hills Veterinary Hospital, hypothermia can be life threatening to animals as well as humans."As long as the cow survived the first 24 hours, is willing to eat and drink, I would assume she's going to be OK," Dr. Holden said. "I haven't seen a lot of hypothermic animals, this is an unusual occasion." Despite her icy bath, Midnight is doing just fine, Sumner said.

WILL DEVALUE MY PROPERTY

To the Editor:

As I understand the issue, the selectmen of Bethel charged the 2003 Committee to look at the future and do a study of where Bethel might go to make our town as near perfect as possible.

Some people are concerned that a tower, a pig farm, a sawmill or other endeavors might occur next to their property making their property value less. I am concerned that zoning is going to devalue my prop-

The outcome of the above-mentioned study is a 22-page document titled, "Proposed Land Management Standards for Bethel, Maine," If enacted, this sweeping zoning proposal would make even more regulation added to the existing federal, state and LURC rules we have now. I cannot conceive why we need even more regulation.

I don't think that the committee realizes that our woodlots and other land are our nest eggs. Mainers like myself have chosen land ownership as a way to invest and save for the future instead of having individual retirement, college accounts, stocks and bonds. Not only do we rely on our property for daily income but for putting our children through college, recreation, vacations, and for our retirement.

The more regulation, the less marketable and less valuable our property will be. Please attend the upcoming hearings and get informed on the 2003 Committee proposal.

SLIGHTLY CRAZY, BUT WORTHY

Saturday, Feb. 1, will see the first day of the Bethel WinterFest, with a central event being the annual plunge into the Androscoggin River. It will take place at noon on Saturday at the Bethel Outdoor Adventure Campground, and this year will include fundraising for the Bethel Fire Department and the Telstar Baseball Team. Most of the baseball team will be participating, so the lineup looks like it might be impressive. Past years have seen a dozen or so hardy souls taking the plunge.

Baseball team members (as well as others) are collecting pledges, and the event is a true spectator sport: cameras, well-wishers, blanker holders, hot chocolate makers are all welcome. There is plenty of space in the bleachers. Folks are also welcome to join those who are supporting these

So everyone please come on by to support this slightly crazy but worthy event

WHO ELSE REMEMBERS?

To the Editor:

Does anyone else remember 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941 to 1945? I don't really remember 1936 when Hitler broke the Treaty of Versailles by moving troops into the Rhineland. I do remember from 1938 to 1945. I remember how Hitler went on to take Austria, Czechoslovakia and with help from Russia the country of Poland. Eventually he took all of Europe and turned on Russia. Crowds of people here in the U.S.A. said, "Let Hitler have all of Europe, he won't bother us, we have an ocean between us!" They were called isolationists (now referred to as peace activists).

The veterans of WWI, of which my Dad was one, could see what was happening. These men formed the organization called The American Legion. They sent emissaries to Washington, D.C. with words of warning and were labeled warmongers.

Hitler was a bully and bullies have to be faced down and put in their place, from the bully in the schoolyard to the bully sitting on the "throne" of a country.

Sept. 11, 2001 is clear proof there is no ocean barrier to protect us. The barrier didn't exist in 1942 to 1945 either as U2 subs were off the Maine coast and one crew attempted a landing. An air attack was expected and we prepared by having "lookout posts" scattered throughout the coastal area. The people manning the posts were trained to recognize planes by their silhouettes. Houses had blackout curtains over the windows; car headlights were partly covered with black tape and of course there was rationing.

But worst of all were the telegrams telling us another one of our friends had been killed in action. I remember well the first telegram that came to my hometown of West Paris and hearing the mother's keening sobs as her heart was wrenched from her body by the death of her only son. The rest of the village was eerily still as the neighbors shared in her grief weeping quietly in their own homes giving her the privacy she desired as she endured this awful loss.

No lives should have been lost. If only the warmongers had been listened to and Hitler been put in his place in 1936.

REMEMBERING LEONA FLINT

To the Editor:

The death this week of Leona Flint reminds me of what she meant to many of us fortunate to have known her over the years. Always pleasant and cordial with a lively sense of humor, she invariably had a thoroughly positive outlook on life despite the hardships and adversities she faced, including the sudden death of her hus-

When I first came to know her in the 1960s, she was operating her cake decorating business and thrift shop. She was in great demand for her delicious and attractive cakes and many seemed to enjoy visiting her thrift shop. When I was in college, I recall buying some great sweaters there along with my favorite sports jacket

When I returned to Bethel in the 1970s and became involved with the Historical Society, I continued to visit Leona's shop and she kept me posted if anything she thought I might like came in. I also took clothes there that I wanted to discard and told her not to consign them, but she always did. I just wanted to give them to her, but she would not take my "gift" without paying me some share of the profit. Despite my protests, she insisted on compensating me every time something sold. As a result, I got small checks from her for years — long after I had forgotten all about what I had left with her. I was simply glad to get rid of these clothes, but ever the conscientious businesswoman, she refused to sell anything without compensating the donor.

Throughout the years, she provided us with cakes for special events at the society. She would never take anything for them, so I would bring her books and little things that I thought might interest her. These always seemed to please her.

When Leona turned eighty in 1992, my mother, who also liked Leona immensely, suggested that I host a luncheon at my house and invite some of her family and friends. Mother baked some of her best casseroles, I made some salads, someone else brought delicious rolls, and of course we had a cake provided by a friend of mother's, It turned out to be a great time for everyone and Leona was pleased. She continued to thank me for some time after that event.

I always responded that it was a pleasure to do anything we could for her. She had long been so kind and generous to everyone who knew her. It seemed only fair to do a little something to honor such a good and gracious "neighbor."

POLIO SKI DAY THANKS

To the Editor:

Last Friday, Jan. 24, Sunday River Ski Resort played host to a "Ski Day To Eradicate Polio" in concert with the Rotary Club of Bethel and our Rotary District 7780. This event, through the generosity of Sunday River Ski Resort, raised $15,600 toward Rotary's global goal of eradicating polio by the year 2005.

As the coordinators of local arrangements with Sunday River, we want to thank Marvin Collins for his unwavering commitment to assist in this effort, Susan Duplessis and Mary McPheters of the Marketing Department for their immeasurable support and suggestions.

Rotary District 7780 incorporates 40 local Rotary clubs from Newburyport, Mass., to Bethel and from Boothbay Harbor to Rochester, N.H. As an international organization working to eliminate polio since 1985, Rotary has set its sights on global eradication for its 100th anniversary year of 2005. We are getting very close and these funds will greatly assist in our efforts.

On behalf of Rotary District 7780 and members of our Rotary Club, I want to thank Sunday River Ski Resort for providing us with this tremendous opportunity to eliminate this horrible disease. Rotarians are extremely proud to be affiliated with Sunday River Ski Resort and we truly appreciate their support. Great job Sunday, it they voted unanimously that it should be put out to bid.

Contract

Increased workload Assessors Stan Howe (chairman) and Bob Blake attended the meeting and attempted to make the case for the contract, and for the increase in cost to the town. "They're getting more to do all the time," said Blake.

And Howe noted that the contract calls for the assessing agent to take over a number of functions currently performed by town staff.

With those additional responsibilities, Howe told the selectmen, 'I seriously doubt we'll get anything cheaper.'

Blake also noted that most assessors felt they had a good working relationship with T.A. Associates.

And Howe argued that the firm was familiar with the Bethel area real estate market, whereas a bidder from farther away might not be so aware of factors affecting local real estate valuations.

"This is a very sensitive thing," he said.

But the selectmen were not willing to forego the bidding process. Town ordinances require that all projects over $3,500 be put to bid, but the selectmen have the authority to waive that requirement. In this case, however, they opted not to.

"Given the amount of money, my feeling is we've got to go out to vote — we owe it to the people,' said selectman Al Barth.

'A vote of no confidence in us' But at an assessors meeting later in the week the matter resurfaced. Assessor John Head — who had not been at the selectmen's meeting - questioned whether they really understood the situation.

Regarding competitive bidding, he said: "I certainly wouldn't fault that. That's the way it should be you shouldn't have sole-source procurement, but are the selectmen aware of the fact that a lot has been added to the duties of the contract assessors?"

He also argued that the contract was for one year only, and intended to give both the Board of Assessors and the contracted agent experience operating under the new arrangements. "We did this for one year only, knowing that we had no experience factor for these additional duties being moved from the Town Office to the assessors," he said. "In my way of thinking that's why we made it a one-year one - we would have an experience factor and we'll be better prepared to go out for bids."

Head also claimed that following the meeting at which the selectmen voted on the contract, two of them had said they were not aware of the "experience factor" aspect of the assessors' reasoning.

Town Manager Scott Cole said he thought the reasoning had been communicated at the selectmen's meeting. But Head contended that sometimes in such situations the message does not get through: "because they were talking to someone beside them or reading something and missed a sentence or two sentences or three sentences - and then they come back and say 'Geeze, I didn't understand that.'

He also termed the selectmen's decision "a vote of no confidence

Try again

The assessors ultimately decided to go ahead with preparations to solicit bids for assessing services. They will also attend the Feb. 3 selectmen's meeting to try once again to make their case of foregoing bidding for one more year.

In a letter to the selectmen, Howe wrote: "Our reasons for this position include an expanded scope of work (preparation of reports, verification of exemptions, increased field review, availability for appointments, etc.), time of year, pending town wide revaluation work, and a proven rapport with T.A. Associates. Ideally, the town would utilize T.A. Associates for at least one more year while we experiment with this approach and its new responsibilities.3 Communication breakdowns

If the current situation is in fact the result of miscommunication between the two boards — either the selectmen's failure to grasp the intent of the assessors, or the assessors' failure to adequately communicate that intention — it would hardly be the first such instance.

Last year, during a discussion of whether the town should begin the process of revaluation, similar problems arose — in that case involving a phantom, or at least unrecorded, vote by the assessors. As a result of that incident, and of a complaint by one developer about the assessors' overall modus operandi. the board began taping its meetings and (for the first time) keeping formal minutes.

Miscommunication has also arisen between the board and T.A. Associates, as the assessors themselves noted at last week's meeting; at one point leading to the firm declining to bid on the new con-

Personalities play their part

In the case of the selectmen at least, the chronic communication problems appear to be compounded, if not created, by personality clashes.

Head, for example, is also a longtime trustee of the Bethel Water District, but recently when his application for another term came up (normally a routine matter in such cases) it was approved by the narrowest possible margin, 3-2.

And when it was proposed at last week's meeting that the assessors re-approach selectmen on the contract matter, Head said: "I have to get tranquilized before I come into a goddamned room with a couple of those bozos."

couldn't move from your desk without the phone ringing," she said, as people reported broken furnaces or empty oil tanks.

Brooks also calculates the frequency of automatic deliveries, but, said Greenwell, that can be thrown off if people change their habits.

For example, she said, if someone leaves a window open while they're away or suddenly stops burning wood to supplement heating, they'll run out earlier than the company would have predicted.

Greenwell said there have been problems with vacation homes that owners only use on weekends. If the furnace quits, she said, no one finds out until after the pipes have frozen.

People need a (alarm) system or at least someone checking on their house," she said. She also suggests people call their dealers if their tanks get down to a quarter full, to see if a delivery is scheduled soon. Arthur Murphy of Bethel isn't Frozen pipes were a common problem last week. Greenwell said she heard from dozens of homeowners.

Norm Dock of Bethel was one of them. His pipes froze twice, but not because of a broken furnace or because he had no oil.

His water line, buried about three feet below the ground between his well and his basement, fell victim to the frozen ground. He blames the thin snowcover and the fact he had cleared a walking path across where the line runs.

Since then, he said, he's let his faucet run a trickle to keep the water moving, and plans to install a heating coil in the pipe.

Some residents have yet another solution to the winter woes — get out of town. Lori Swain of Swain's-Quest Travel in Bethel said during the past couple of weeks her business has increased by about 25 percent over what it was this time last year. The Caribbean and Florida are popular destinations. "Anywhere south," said Swain. "People say, 'I can't stand it anymore, I've got to get out of here."

Students disciplined for cheating

BETHEL—Several Telstar High School students were suspended this week as a result of their involvement in an academic cheating incident, Supt. Dave Murphy said. The incident took place during midterm exams, and school staff investigated, he said. Murphy said a handful of students were involved, and that some students had been suspended and their parents notified.

Disposing of wastewater and junkers

GREENWOOD-The town has hired Doug Bennett to haul off wastewater, runoff from the town garage, that has been collected since October. The Environmental Protection Agency instructed the town to collect the water in a holding tank, rather than let it drain onto surrounding land. According to Town Manager Carol Whitman, the wastewater will be accepted by the Rumford-Mexico Sewage District. Selectmen are also seeking to dispose of more than 130 junk cars and stacks of heavy-equipment tires on 134 acres of land that the town acquired through foreclosure. The Rabbit Lane property was abandoned by Peter Gordon after he failed to pay property taxes on if for three consecutive years, and the town acquired clear title to it on Nov. 30, 2002. Surveyor Gary Inman has been hired to survey the parcel, Junk car dealers Richard Hatstat of Albany and Scott Gagne of Oxford were asked to submit proposals on removing the cars. The land is still subject to a $750,000 lien from the state, to help pay for the millions of tires the state removed from Gordon's tire dump.

Funds sought to fix cemetery

ANDOVER—At the March Town Meeting voters will consider whether to raise funds to restore the iron fence at the Woodlawn Cemetery. The fence was damaged when a car slid off the road during a snowstorm earlier this month. The car owner's insurance will pay for basic repairs, according to selectman Joan Stimson Carney. But restoration of the entire 600-foot-long, Civil War era fence would be more costly and time-consuming, she said. The work could be done in stages, over a period of several years.

Oliver Twist auditions at CPS

BETHEL — Auditions for the Children's Stage Adventures musical production of "Oliver Twist" will be held at 3 p.m., Monday, Feb. 3, at the Crescent Park School. Approximately 55 SAD44 school children, grades K through 5, will be cast to appear in the show with CSA actors/educators Lorrie and Rob Gray. The performances will take place on Saturday, Feb. 8 at 2 and 7 p.m. at CPS. Assistant directors will also be cast to aid in rehearsals throughout the week and to take on essential backstage responsibilities. A choral group, under the guidance of Tom Collidge, will also organize at that time. The CSA residency is made possible by the combined efforts of the Crescent Park PTA, the Woodstock School PTA, and the Andover School PTA.

Snowbox Derby next weekend

BETHEL—The third annual Great Snowbox Derby will take place Saturday Feb. 8 at 10 a.m. at the Bethel Inn & Country Club. An estimated 150 Crescent Park and Woodstock elementary school students will race the clock in snow sliding machines they have made from recycled materials. Hut system clears one hurdle DEAD RIVER TOWNSHIP—The staff of the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) recommended the PUC not investigate a lease between Central Maine Power Company and Western Mountains Foundation. The land in the lease is for a site to build a backcountry hut on Flagstaff Lake, part of the 180-mile Maine Huts and Trails system. The Office of the Public Advocate asked the PUC to investigate a lease at the request of the Friends of Bigelow, who are opposed to groomed cross-country ski trails crossing the Bigelow Preserve and who want the land in Dead River Township to become part of the preserve. The hut would be part of the phase-one development of a 180-mile trail for cross-country skiing, hiking, biking, and snowshoeing, stretching from Newry to Moosehead Lake. The PUC commissioners are expected to decide on the Public Advocates' request on March 3. A Feb. 12 Public Hearing scheduled by LURC to begin the permitting process of the hut has been delayed pending the PUC's decision.

Unemployment up again

AUGUSTA-The seasonally adjusted December unemployment rate for Maine was 4.7 percent, up from 4.4 percent in November and 4.3 percent a year ago, according to state Labor Commissioner Valerie Landry. The Maine unemployment rate was well below the national December rate of 6.0 percent. "The total number of non-farm wage and salary jobs has remained essentially unchanged for several months," said Commissioner Landry. "Without a gain in jobs to absorb the increasing number of Maine residents seeking work, seasonally adjusted unemployment has risen." Slight losses in several industries were mostly offset by a gain in retail trade. Between December 2001 and December 2002, seasonally adjusted non-farm wage and salary jobs rose by 2,200. Gains were primarily recorded in services, retail trade, and government. Partially offsetting these gains, manufacturing jobs declined by 4,100, with the largest losses in electronic and other electric equipment and paper and allied products. Other New England states reporting their seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for December include New Hampshire, 4.8 percent, and Vermont, 4.2 percent. The adjusted national rate for December was 6.0 percent, unchanged from 6.0 percent in November and up from 5.8 percent in

Do-not-call list grows

PORTLAND—Jackie Langlois used to get fed up at calls from telephone pitchmen. She isn't fed up any more. Since signing up for the state's "Do Not Call" list, Langlois rarely gets calls from telemarketers at her Ogunquit home. Langlois is one of more than 55,000 Mainers who have signed up for the list, designed to keep telemarketers from calling people who don't want to be called. Nationally, more than 7 million people have signed up for do-not-call lists in 27 states. Maine launched its do-not-call initiative in September 2001, and experienced a surge last September when the state began offering online registration on the Internet. Maine forwards its names every month to the Direct Marketing Association, which maintains the registry. Companies engaged in telemarketing buy the lists — either from the DMA or individual states — informing them of who doesn't want to be called at home. In Maine, violators face criminal penalties of up to 12 months in jail and a $2,000 fine, and civil penalties of up to $10,000 per violation. The system isn't perfect, but the DMA says that 80 percent of the people on the lists report a reduction in telemarketers' calls. But there are loopholes. In Maine, the law doesn't apply to Maine-based businesses, nonprofit organizations, banks and other lending institutions. Political phone calls are also not regulated.

Snowboard thefts prevented

PINKHAM NOTCH—Staff members at Wildcat Mountain Ski Area, working with New Hampshire State Police, identified thieves last Sunday who were stealing snowboards at the resort. After two boards were reported stolen at noon, staff contacted State Police and spearheaded an area-wide search to recover the boards. General Manager, Thomas Caughey, noticed two men with one of the missing boards approaching a parking lot. The men were questioned in the parking lot, and the entrance blocked by a snowmobile. The men became agitated, and drove through a snow bank with their pickup truck. They were apprehended by State Police in Tamworth, N.H., and six stolen boards were recovered.

From the Bethel Police Log:

The driver, Arthur Beaver, 19, was arrested and charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and operating after suspension. The passenger, a juvenile was charged with unathorized use of a motor vehicle, possession of a usable amount of marijuana and sale and/or use of drug paraphernalia.

school program into one that would now fall under public school criteria for participation.

Bethel director Jill Rundle said the district would also have to consider "what's best for the kids at Telstar.

"We would be maintaining spe-cial support for kids whose parents could afford (MMS tuition)," she said, while there continue to be TMS students who could have benefited from the program but whose families could not afford it.

Murphy said he would not call the MMS program an elite one. Rather, he described the makeup of the students as "heterogeneous."

"We would grandfather the kids now in the program," he said, and assign criteria for deciding what Telstar students might qualify for participation in the future. "We'd look at kids in this building who could benefit," he said. Murphy said that two years ago, SAD44 established an alternativestyle education program to serve students having difficulty with traditional classes at TMS. But it didn't work out because there wasn't an opportunity to put the necessary planning into it, he said. Bethel director Becky Cummings wondered what that might mean for the MMS program. "If we couldn't do it here, how can we do it there?" she asked.

Said Murphy, "What we inherit is a plan," and the challenge will be to find teaching staff "with the commitment of Marie Hickey."

He said, for example, Hickey would often ask her students for their input in planning learning experiences, and design them from there.

Most directors gave their informal approval for Murphy to go ahead with the plan to take over the school's operation. He is expected to present a more detailed plan at the next board meeting.

Murphy said Wednesday that Kara Masters-Siekman will serve as the temporary substitute teacher, while Kathy Hodsdon will be an aide. Masters-Siekman had served as an aide at the school with Hickey, and Hodson as a volunteer.

Hickey said Wednesday she appreciates SAD44's efforts to continue the program. "I'm grateful for the support of the parents, and of the district," she said. "The fact that the district is willing to step in and help out is wonderful." She said she wasn't sure if she might still be involved in the school in some capacity in the future. "It depends on how everything works out," she said. Debbie Barlow of Hanover had a son in the Mahoosuc Mountain School. When she heard of the school's expected closing, she made arrangements for him to return to Mountain Valley Middle School, and will carry through with that plan.

But, she said, she believes it is a good idea to try to continue the school in its current location. "It is a wonderful school," she said.

out." "Without editing, it wouldn't have been very good," said star, Lance Brown. "It gets everything right. It adds the music, which really gets the movie going. The consensus amongst sixth graders at Telstar is that "Henry" is a smashing success. It's easy to understand why. The movie features several special effects, from ghostly appearances to a slow-motion game of pass that is truly haunting.

As sophisticated as "Henry" is, it maintains the charm of a childhood production. In the opening scenes, star Lance Brown struggles to control a smile. The shot is a serious one, but the inner conflict of Brown's role versus the excitement of playing that role shines through. For a few moments at least, the grin wins.

As the film progresses, each of the actors becomes visibly more comfortable with their characters. Chapman, who speaks not a word in the film, appears in shot after shot, looking lost and vulnerable.

"Motion is more powerful than words," Brown says of Chapman's performance.

The actors' skills are demonstrated in the everyday boy charm that Annis exudes, Chapman's ghostliness, and Brown's confusion. Cross's talent as a budding director are apparent in the subtle plot which builds tension as the viewer wonders, "What's happening here?"

"It's better than we thought it would be," Annis said.

The four are already developing a list of projects to tackle next.

They are considering a story written last year by Brown, "Attacked by My Own Imagination." Brown described it as a "humorous fantasy," not a horror story.

"Beowulf," the earliest recorded story in the English Language, is also on the list. They said they're reading the book in Mrs. Slattery's class, and Cross is writing a script based on the story.

The third idea they're considering is another original story by Brown called "Tracks." Two boys find tracks that are not human and not animal; they must decide if they should tell their parents or use what they think is Bigfoot for a science project.

Whichever film they decide to tackle, it is clear that Channel IV viewers will be in for a treat.

'Henry" and "6th Grade Activit Period" can be seen on Channel IV, the local cable access channel, at: 10 a.m. today, noon on Friday, 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday, 2 p.m. Sunday, noon on Tuesday, and 2 p.m. next Wednesday.

Sunday River Valley

Rockie Graham It is amazing how beautiful the sunrises and sunsets are on those oh so cold days. The reds are ever so bright and the whole sky appears to glow red. It makes one wonder how we can just drive by this beauty and ignore what gifts are offered to us. At the same time, I've been a total wuss and have been hiding out indoors much too much. I blame it on spending my days in an overheated and under heated school. But that is just an excuse. I have been ignoring the desire to walk and just run inside, instead. It has been cold. Even Tasha is ready to go in when I get home. She heads for the front door shortly after I let her off the chain. I have to admit that she doesn't exactly want to go out when I leave for work. She is quite content to lie by the woodstove as long as she can. Now we've had a short reprieve, very short. As I write this, the temperature is dropping rapidly. I was amazed to see it below zero at 4 p.m. I didn't expect that until midnight. Time to get some indoor exercise.

I hope the weather warms just a little for the midwinter festivities. I know it can be 60 or it can be 20 below this time of year, but I'm hoping for 30 degrees. Joe Cupo isn't promising that at all. We'll just have to wait and see. It may make it to the teens tomorrow, and then — who knows. I'm thinking warmer thoughts. I don't want hot, just a little warmer. Enough so that I can walk outside and not feel like the wind is blowing right through

I am still looking for a new poetry location. Anyone with an idea should let me know. It is so cold in here right now that I hesitate to invite anyone over. Of course every other house I've been in during the last few weeks is just as cold, but still — . In any case, I'm about to give in and turn on the electric blanket and call it a cold night. Have a good week, stay warm and watch out for that ice and snow.

She was born on Jan. 17 and weighed in at a whopping four pounds, twelve ounces. She is now over five pounds and gaining fast. Her proud parents are Nadine Donahue and Greg Simmons. Her brothers are Elijah and Parker. Her maternal grandmother is Denise Benedix, and her paternal grandparents are Barbara and Bill Simmons. She is also my cousin (three times removed) or however you put it. Anyway she is a beautiful baby girl and a welcome addition to our family.

I want to wish (another cousin, same generation) Ethan Meisner Nelson of Foxboro, Mass., a belated first birthday. His birthday was Jan. 20, so I'm just a little bit late with this. Ethan's mother is former Andover resident Megan Meisner, his maternal grandparents are Andover residents Vickie and Marshall Meisner and his maternal great-grandmother is Lorena Simmons. Grapevine has it that Ethan celebrated his birthday by getting his first haircut. Poor me, always a third cousin, never a grandmother. My son, Brian, has given me permission to call his dog, Chloe, my granddaughter; somehow it just isn't the same but look at the bright side, I've no dirty diapers to change, no expensive presents to buy, and if she cries I can always tell her to go sit in the corner and

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

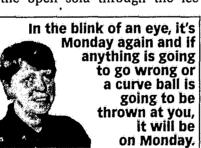

For most of us Monday is not our favorite day of the week. The weekends go too fast, barely giving us enough time to enjoy the free time or accomplish all of the tasks that we had hoped to. We go through the T.G.I.F. excitement, roll into the weekend and in the blink of an eye, it's Monday again and if anything is going to go wrong or a curve ball is going to be thrown at you, it will be on Monday.

That is exactly what happened to me this past Monday. I had a very bad night's sleep and awoke with the "Oh God, I hate Monday" frame of mind. I dragged myself out of bed and was considering drowning myself in a cup of coffee when Henry said he didn't feel good. For most people it's not such a big deal when their spouse doesn't feel good, but Henry is confined to a wheel chair and when he says, "I don't feel good." It usually means head holding, back slapping or multiple bathroom trips and certainly a change in my work schedule.

Within minutes of Henry's proclamation of distress the telephone rang. It was my daughter calling to say that her car had died and her three year old had something wrong with his leg and was there any way possible that I could take care of him. Well, since I was going to have to be home with Henry, having a three year old as an added bonus was not a problem. However, Renee obviously needed transportation to get to and from her job. I went to pick her up with the offer that she could drop me and the little one off at home and keep my car and by this time the six year old had decided that he didn't feel all that well either and of course, he would come spend the day with me too. This all took place before 7 a.m.

Now, let me explain that my grandsons are the joys of my life. I do spoil them as any good grandparent will do, so they knew this would be a day of my catering to their every need. They had a pretty good idea that I wouldn't have a problem with popcorn and ice cream for breakfast.

open my sofa into a queen size bed, which is always a source of great excitement for the kids. I was just in the process of getting the little ones settled in with their goodies and cartoons when Henry needed attention. While taking care of this chore, Elijah, the three year old, managed to spill his ice cream and was screaming to the top of his lungs. I dropped Henry where he needed to be and went running to see what was going on. By the sound, I thought that life and limb of one of my precious ones was in peril. While running to the living room I tripped over a pair of boots and went flying across the open sofa through the ice cream and causing the pop corn to somersault through the air landing on Reese, the six year old, thus setting off his screaming.

About this time, Henry started screaming to find out what was happening because he was sure the little boys must have poked each other's eyes out with something sharp, which has always been a concern of his. I managed to calm everyone down, clean up the kids, myself and the sofa and assure Henry that both children were fine.

I realized that I had not yet had my morning coffee, so thought things were under control enough so that I could do just that and read the newspaper while I was at it. I had gotten as far as the Obit page when Elijah decided he needed a trip to the bathroom, which meant carrying him because of his bum knee. I went back to my coffee and newspaper figuring the young lad needed a little privacy. Big mis-take! When I went back to the bathroom, Elijah had coated the sink and part of the floor with his grandfather's shaving cream and was in the process of cleaning it up The first order of business, after with a roll of toilet paper, which he the popcorn and ice cream, was to was throwing in the flush.

I carried Elijah back to the living room, cleaned up the shaving cream and fished the roll of toilet paper out of the flush and went back to my then cold coffee. Reese was the next one to make a trip to the bathroom, but he could at least do that on his own and he chose the upstairs facility. After what I felt was an appropriate amount of time I called up to him to make sure everything was okay. He responded that everything was okay. I asked what was taking him so long and he responded "Nothing." When a six year old tells you "Nothing" you know without a doubt that it is something so up the stairs I went.

Reese was in the guest bedroom having himself a wonderful time. He had discovered that if he climbed up on top of a bureau and dive-bombed on to the guest bed, which is on wheels, it would roll all the way across the room. I shooed him back downstairs and straightened up the guest room and went back to my cold coffee. Then Henry required another comfort

We got through the rest of the morning with a few more minor mishaps and spilled drinks, but otherwise okay. Then it was lunch time and wouldn't you just know it, each child and Henry all wanted something different. Reese had a grilled cheese, which he didn't eat and Elijah had mac 'n cheese, which he didn't eat and Henry, bless his heart, ate all of the ham sandwich he requested. I still had not finished a cup of coffee or the newspaper.

Finally, after several more trips for each person to the bathroom and several more spills and sibling fights and grandfather arguments, my daughter arrived. Henry seemed much better, so I drove Renee and the kids home and went to work. Monday was almost over.

My grandsons are all the world to me and I love Henry with all my heart, but the way I see it, I don't ever want to deal with all three of them on a Monday morning unless someone guarantees me that I will be able to have a nice hot cup of coffee first.

occasion on Sunday, Several parties were held in Upton. Refreshments at the Nelson Party were Italian sandwiches made by the eighth-grade class at the Errol School. Three members of the class making these great grinders were: Devon Ruell, Christina Eames and Barry Eastman. They are working hard to raise money for their class trip.

The bitter cold has kept everyone on the alert. Many days with the thermometer dipping down below zero and accompanying winds produce a dangerous climate for man and beast alike. Jennifer Casey, on her way to work spotted what she thought was a dog in one of the fields. The temperature was 10 below zero. On closer inspection she found it to be a goose. Domestic or wild she could not say. That silly goose was headed for the deep freeze before his predicted demise.

The cold doesn't seem to interfere with the two resident foxes at Wixom's. Sandy says they are beautiful in their winter finery. Their black stockings and bushy tails are a pleasure to see. Last week while Gene Wixom was "fox watching," (the furry type), he saw Dad Fox nab a red squirrel. The wounded squirrel ran up a tree. Sly fox nestled down at the edge of the woods, biding his time till his prey fell to the ground. Let the banquet begin. Although this is not your usual pretty picture, it is a background shot in the food chain. Look at it this way, I don't feel sorry for the mice the weasel snags. Bon Apetite Mrs. Weasel and Mr. Fox.

Welcome home to Joy Yarnell from her Florida visit. She says Florida was "cool." Cool instead of cold is very "cool."

We received another e mail from Earl and Lucille Largesse from Arizona. They are having a very enjoyable winter. Earl says that it sure beats plowing snow on the Upton hills. Mike Chapman, our current road commissioner would gladly trade places on many cold "white" nights. Earl and Lucille have joined a group that hikes out into the deserts and the mountains of Arizona.

Nelson will retire from Berlin City Chevrolet. His fellow workers and his company will miss his big smile and hearty laugh. He is not the stereotypical car salesman, even though he could sell a Corvette to an Eskimo in the Arctic. He has been professional and caring with his many customers returning to him when in search of a new vehicle. His Upton friends will miss the convenience of having Larry pick up some article in Berlin or bringing their cars down for service. Happy retirement, Larry. What will you be selling next year? Could it be "bikinis" to the Eskimos?

The blue jays and Canada jays are cleaning up the remaining red berries in the window box decorations. Vitamin "C" for the birds.

The amount and variety of birds remains the same. Early in the morning doves predominate followed by blue jays and red squirrels. The little birds make the scene later cleaning up the seed fragments on the ground. Next "Black Jack" the grackle arrives scaring all the little guys away. The peanut butter feeder is an ever popular spot with all of the birds and the ever present red squirrel. Pick your favorite "Bird of the Week" and ponder how lucky we are to have these beautiful creatures to brighten up the cold heart of winter.

Lorraine Larson I have not been very happy with January. First, it was losing the cold and last night I got a call from my cousin, Frank Flint, in Georgia telling me that my Aunt Leona had passed away. I suppose I shouldn't get upset, she was after all 90 years old and had lived a good life, and these past years no knowing just how she really viewed life as she didn't always know who we were. She seemed to have a good time roaming around the corridors of Ledgeview and always had a smile on her face and would talk to you even if one didn't always quite know what it was she meant. She did surprise me one day when she said, "Pray for me," very clearly, I told her I would and then she took off again in her wheelchair. I am very much. The Memorial Service the Church of the Nazarene had for Andy last Saturday was very nice. I At 5 p.m. today, Jan. 30, Larry couldn't have asked for a better a.m., Sunday School and Adult' service. Ginny Walker played the piano for us, as our piano player had to work. It was nice of Ginny to fill in. Gerry Shimamura and our Pastor, Chuck Mason, led the service. Gerry read a letter from Marcia, who was unable to get time off from work to come down. Chuck had the message, which was on perseverance, mentioning that Andy never gave up and was always positive in his attitude. Jim Cobb led those who attended in singing several of Andy's favorite hymns, Fellowship and food followed in the Fellowship Hall.

Andy and then

It has been so cold outside that even Princess has not been much inclined to stay out very long. I tried working in the barn on Wednesday so I could throw out some things and get them to the dump, but I gave up after about ten minutes. Nothing wanted to work. I have heard about the numbing cold and I couldn't get my feet to move very fast and my hands just wouldn't cooperate. No doubt that if Andy were here he would say that it was normal for me to be that way anyway. But this was worse than usual, and I imagine it has been difficult for a lot of people. I haven't had any frozen pipes so far but the hot water tank sprung a leak and will have to be replaced. So what else is new.

Jazz-Poochie and Lucy have been glad to get in and warm up but they still don't want to stay in nights. I would think they would but apparently they are like most of the rest of us and want their own bed. They have plenty of hay and blankets and I saw a water dish in Wal-Mart that said it would keep the water from freezing and I got it, and it does. That is such a blessing. No more having to thaw out the water every time I turn around and I know they always have water to drink.

Well, I guess that is all for this week. I am going to have Ralph show me how to get these articles from the notepad to the e-mail. I tried writing directly on e-mail but I would lose the connection to the server half the time and I never knew whether it was getting sent or not. This way I won't have to connect to the Internet until I am ready to send out. Should be a much better method.

Albany

Sheila Dyke Hello again from Albany Township. We all had a rather nice reprieve this weekend from the extreme cold. Of course, it had to come back just as fierce as before. After all, it is January in Maine. We hope everyone is keeping warm and comfortable inside even when it's unbearable outside.

Saturday evening we were invited out to the Chosun House in Bethel by Ed and Mary Jo Kennett to try some sushi and Korean food. We had a great time sampling the various foods. Dana was more experimental than Sheila was, and ate quite a bit of the sushi. It's not what you think: most people think it's just raw fish, but, it's more than that. It's a lovely display of seafood, rice, seaweed (which was surprisingly good as well), and talent (on the part of the chef). We also tried an entree called Bibambok (we hope that's the spelling), a wonderful Korean dish of rice, various vegetables, egg, seasoning and heat. It arrives at your table in a stone bowl - and it's still cooking. You chop the egg into the mixture, mix it up, and enjoy. The owner of the restaurant was a wonderful and gracious hostess, and we do plan to eat there again.

mean one - chasing me into comfort and warmth beneath the blankets. My enthusiasm for winter in the North is nipped by her frigid icy glare. All moving water is suspended in midstream and I am humbled by her fierce cold. I set off to work on Monday morning after a nice hot shower, smug in my warmth and certain of my security. What did I know?

January's cold shoulder. She is a

When I got home from work, our neighbor, Joe Gaudreau, was here trying to make sense of one frozen zone in our heating system. The weekend found us with our kitchen pipes backed up with years of sludge, our oil tank empty and our computer crashing under the weight of an upgrade. That's three count 'em. This challenge came in a five-pack. By Monday afternoon, I came home fighting a respiratory infection and crabby for want of a nap. Joe was here heating pipes and eventually putting valves in, so the whole system wouldn't be harmed by one dysfunctional zone. His last request was for water to prime the pipes. Alas - no water flowed. Not in the kitchen or the bathroom. No water flowed period. Denial allowed me to establish that this is not good. I promptly climbed in under the covers to warm myself to the frigid truth. Slowly panic began to set in. I saw myself blithely throwing laundry into the machine load after load, four people reveling in lengthy morning showers, dishes being washed by the push of a button. I remembered watering my garden during the drought of summer and slowly the discomfort settled in — Mother Nature is a fierce teacher constantly reminding me that I don't know what I've got till its gone. No one gets to cut her class. The harsh truth of January for us is no running water and time keeps moving even where water has stopped flowing. The worst-case scenario is a return of flow in spring. Meanwhile, the challenge - to take it like a Black Diamond trail, one turn at a time knowing full well that of course you are capable. Of course I am capable.

Funny isn't it — but one flow ceases and another begins. Alan Newton has known our house for years and after his long day of work, came by to try his tricks on our water system. He spent hours attempting to pierce the problem. The next day Stephen, Alan and Donny Katlin all gathered in the basement for several hours — three brains up against the problem. As I lay on the couch with a fierce sinus headache, the water angels mulled over the problem and Jeremy Starks worked his magic over our computer to restore it to its original level of functioning. I dozed in and out of semi-consciousness vaguely aware of something called Brother-

Today, four of five problems are set right, and even though the water's flow remains frozen, we are awash in the milk of human kindness. As our situation is revealed to friends and acquaintances, a plan emerges. We receive invitations for showers. We simplify and take it one gallon at a time. For the first time in my life, I wash my hair with a measuring cup and drink from hand-carried containers. My sons are responsible for their own laundry to be carried to the laundromat. We each have one set of dishes to use and wash. I promise I'll never take flowing water for granted again, nor the healing circle of helping hands. No water? We'll live — but will be deeply grateful when the flow returns. In the meantime, my gratitude goes to my neighbors here on Bog Road.

From the

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

Over eighty donations of artifacts were made to the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center in 2002 according to Curator of Collections Randall Bennett. These ranged from books, manuscripts, photographs, quilts, and memorabilia, all of which relate to the history of northern New England. Much appreciation is expressed to all the donors for their generosity.

More than a thousand members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For over thirty-five years, the society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library. In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Through the years, the society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

NOW News

According to the annual American Lung Association report, Maine is currently ranked number one for how we are spending our tobacco settlement dollars. This is great news for the health of our state, as the positive results of all our efforts are being recognized. In particular there has been a 37percent decrease since 1997 in the number of Maine youth that use tobacco. The work doesn't stop here, however. Constant advocacy for the protection of the Fund for a Healthy Maine, our tobacco settlement dollars, must occur to be able to continue with innovative school and community based programs that are currently in play. Megan Rice from the state agency Maine Coalition on Smoking or Health (MCOSOH) recently spoke at the coalition's quarterly Grant Advisory Council meeting. This agency works adamantly on protecting the Fund for a Healthy Maine. Megan spoke on the Healthy Maine pledge that has been signed by a number of Maine legislators. The pledge is signed by those in the Legislature that agree to work toward protecting the fund. MCOSOH efforts are an invaluable resource to our community.

With the current state budget deficit all state-funded programs face looming cuts in the future; this includes the Fund for a Healthy Maine. What can we do at the local level? Talk to our legislators. Let them know the importance of having this funding. Maybe you're a smoker that attended a cessation class and successfully quit. Maybe you're a student who is involved in one of Project NOW's youth-based school programs. Maybe you're a parent whose fourth-grade son or daughter came home and talked about the Tar Wars presentation they had at school. It's important to let your state representatives know how your lives may have been affected by Project NOW, and the Fund for a Healthy Maine. Even if you are none of the abovementioned, but are a strong supporter for your own health, and the health of your community and state, I still urge you to call your legislators, talk to them in passing, or write them a letter stressing the importance of why we need to protect current and future funding.

Project NOW stands for Northern Oxford Wellness and is one of 31 community-based Healthy Maine Partnerships that were developed from the Fund for a Healthy Maine. This organization is based out of Rumford as part of River Valley Healthy Communities Coalition. Project NOW's purpose is to educate others on the topics of tobacco, physical fitness, and good nutrition. The surrounding areas benefiting from these grant monies are those towns in SAD21, SAD43, SAD44, and Peru. This is a sign we're working with the best.

At Stephens Memorial Hospital, our goal is to provide our patients with the best possible care. Sometimes that means a referral to Maine Medical Center, another member of the MaineHealth family, for more advanced diagnosis or treatment. So we're pleased to know that Maine Medical Center was recently named one of the top 100 hospitals in the country.

The distinction comes from Solucient, a national healthcare information company that studied 6,000 U.S. hospitals. Results were based not on opinions, but on facts—performance in areas like successful treatment and low complication rates. Just 2% of the hospitals in the country meet these high standards.

We congratulate Maine Medical Center on its recognition as a true statewide resource. Our working relationship assures our patients of the finest in both local care and advanced care.
